MANY CASES DISPOSED OF

Judge Lindsay Clearing the Docket Before Going to Phillipsburg.

AN IMPORTANT DECISION

In the Case of Butler Against McCormick—The Wiedman-Wetley Suit—A Threatened Contest Settled—Court Matters.

Judge Lindsay held a session of court yesterday morning and disposed of a lot of cases which he had had under advisement. In the suit of Fitz H. Butler, assignee of the Harris-McCormick company, to compel John McCormick, a member of the firm, to pay into the hands of the assignee a large amount of money claimed to be due on stock he had subscribed for, the court made a decision in favor of the defendant. Mr. McCormick had filed an answer to the suit of the assignee and set up as a defense that he had loaned money and rendered services to the corporation in excess of the amount sued for, and if a liability was established on a demurrer to the answer and a motion to strike out certain portions of it. In deciding the matter yesterday, Judge Lindsay said: "I shall overrule the motion to strike out a portion of the defendant's answer and also the demurrer to said answer, and in so doing will say that, in my judgment, the answer interposed to the complaint is sufficient to defeat recovery by the plaintiff, if the allegations therein contained are true. The argument of counsel for plaintiff to the effect that a stockholder of a corporation cannot set off debts due by the corporation to himself, in an action brought by a creditor thereof against such stockholder to enforce his separate liability, is perhaps the law; but the case at bar can hardly be considered an action of that character. The defendant in this case has set up as a defense the assignment for the benefit of the creditors of the Harris-McCormick company a claim that monies have been advanced and labor performed by him for the corporation, greater in amount and more valuable than the sum claimed by the plaintiff from the defendant; and furthermore, it is alleged by the answer that an account stated has been had as between the assignee and McCormick. If the fact is that money has been advanced and services performed as alleged, the defendant ought to be equally entitled with the other creditors of the corporation to recover the amount and value thereof, and if a liability for such amount to stock on the part of the defendant exists to offset such claim, it is properly a matter to be determined by a jury."

A decision setting aside a general verdict of a jury was made in the case of J. A. Murray against the Montana Lumber & Manufacturing company. The plaintiff had sued for possession of a tract of ground on the Railroad side, in South Butte, and occupied by the lumber company. The jury returned a general verdict for the plaintiff, but a lot of special findings were made in favor of the defendant. The court was asked to set aside the jury's findings, and Judge Lindsay yesterday set aside the verdict so far as they favored the plaintiff, and ordered a new trial. He ruled that Murray held the ground as trustee for the defendant, and ordered him to execute a deed to the company for the property.

In the case of Charles Wiedman and others against A. H. Wetley, the court sustained a demurrer, which practically settles the case. In 1894 Wetley sued a company of which Wiedman and others were trustees for the recovery of some mining machinery and for damages and got judgment for $1,200. The judgment was not paid. He sued the trustees of the company, and a default judgment was entered against them. It was claimed they were individually liable, because they had not complied with the law which requires the trustees of corporations to publish annual statements of the company's financial condition. Wiedman and his partners then brought suit against Wetley to set aside his judgment on the ground that it was not supported by the allegations of the complaint. A demurrer to their suit was argued and sustained by the court.

About a year ago the executor of the estate of James Tuohy, deceased, obtained an order of court authorizing him to compromise certain claims. Later James McFarland had the executor cited into court to show cause why the order should not be revoked. McFarland claiming some interest in it. A demurrer was entered to the citation and the case was set for trial by the court. An order was made releasing J. A. Talbot and A. J. Davis as sureties on the bond of the guardians of the Fritz minors upon the filing of a new bond by the guardian within 10 days.

What had threatened to result in a contest over the estate of William E. Harris was settled yesterday by the withdrawal of one of the applications for letters of administration. Mrs. Anna B. Lamphier, the widow, was appointed administratrix. A motion for a new trial in the mining case of King against Heinze was overruled; also in the case of M. Donlan against H. L. Clark and others.

Judge Brantly of Deer Lodge will today take the place of Judge Lindsay in Department L, and will occupy the bench the remainder of the month. Judge Lindsay will go to Phillipsburg to-morrow to hold court for Judge Brantly.

THE DUNKARDS' BANQUET.

Doings of a Strange Sect of Religious Enthusiasts.

Brooklyn Eagle.
According to the reckoning of the Dunkards, a sect of German-American Baptists said to have been founded in Westphalia in 1708, Christ was crucified in the early weeks of May. There are settlements of these believers in a strange crescent-shaped strip of land, in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Maryland, Virginia, Kansas and California. From these Dunkards a sect must be distinguished the Seventh day Dunkards, commonly called the German Seventh day Baptists.

During the past week a convention of Dunkards has been in progress in Frederick, Md., where representatives of the sect from all over the country have assembled to the number of over 4,000. They are for the most part simple, uneducated people, very abstemious in their habits, but withal thrifty and many took considerable money with them to the conference. As a consequence the simple Dunkards have been systematically robbed by pickpockets and thieves during the present convention of sums ranging from one to several hundred dollars. One elder, who took an elderly man's money for safe-keeping, was himself robbed of the man's money and his own. It is said that the pickpockets, particularly women thieves, have been successful through wearing the garb of the Dunkards and prosecuting their thefts under that blind.

Lordsburg is the only large Dunkard colony in California or west of Kansas. In May the sect has special ceremonies in observance of the last supper, and this year the members of it kept the sacred and awful anniversary in larger numbers than ever. The San Francisco Chronicle says that a host of people of other denominations have gathered in Lordsburg to witness these ceremonies. For days they had been in preparation. Houses had been cleaned, the family cooking utensils were in advance and all cooking necessary for three days had been religiously performed. The Dunkards in their sable garb assembled in a large upper hall that they call their tabernacle. The room is divided by a railing that runs lengthwise of the apartment. The men took seats on one side and the women on the other. No more serious audience ever congregated. For two hours Elder Pennington preached upon the sacredness of the anniversary. Then followed an hour of silent prayer and men and women sank on their knees in awing silence and remained there with bent heads until Elder Pennington announced that devotions were over.

At 8 o'clock in the evening the Dunkards reassembled in the tabernacle for the last service. No one spoke and no children were brought in. Occasionally sobs and moans were heard from those more deeply moved. Then the elder rose and said:
"Let us do as the Master did."
Half a dozen foot tubs partly filled with water were brought, together with a pile of towels. The tubs were equally divided among the men and women, who set apart from each other. While several patriarchal men put towels about their waists as aprons several women did likewise. Then each man with an apron took a tub in his hands and went and kissed some other man on the lips and knelt at the other's feet. He removed the other man's shoes, turned up his trousers-legs and ceremoniously washed his feet. Then when he had dried the feet with the towel, he again knelt the man and saluted him, saying:
"This we do in memory of our Master."

Then that man placed feet had been washed and knelt with the other men and performed the foot-washing ceremony. So they went on from one man to another for over an hour.

Meanwhile the women were likewise kissing, saluting and washing one another's feet. It was all done solemnly. Save for the splashing of water, the kisses and the subdued word of salutation no sounds were heard. All the spectators were awed to silence at the strange scene.

After a long period of silent prayer the communion of bread and wine was observed. Then came the observance of the last supper. Baskets of plates and forks and spoons and knives were brought in and arranged on the table. Then came dishes of cold staple foods, such as roast beef, pork and beans, bread and water, soup, and apples without a word spoken and one heard only the rattle of knives and forks. Each person had been exhorted to remember the meaning of the supper.

Then, following the supper, the Lord's last supper, the Dunkards rose to their feet at a given signal and with bowed heads sang two verses of a sacred hymn and went out of the hall and home without another word escaping their lips.

MEETING OF COMMITTEES

The License Proposition Is Discussed at Length.

FOREIGN BEER IS TAXED

An Attempt to Drink Butte Water Results in the Framing of a Protest to Be Presented to the Council To-Night.

The license committee was in session for nearly three hours last evening, and as a result of its deliberations it will recommend to the council to-night, among other things, that the pool rooms, where bookmakers post odds on the Eastern and California races be closed. The proposition of licensing them was advanced, but after a good deal of discussion it was decided to recommend that they be closed on the ground that they are percentage games and are prohibited by the anti-gambling ordinance. If it should develop that they are not fully covered by that ordinance it is said that they will be closed under the new state law prohibiting gambling as soon as it goes into effect. It was also decided to compel the Eastern brewers who ship beer into Butte in carload and trainload lots to pay something for the privilege, and the committee recommended that they be required to pay a license of $75 a year. This section applies only to wholesale dealers in malt liquors exclusively, who have heretofore paid no license at all. Grocers who sell liquor will be required to pay a wholesale liquor license of $150 a year in addition to their regular merchandise license.

A license of $10 per quarter was fixed for all hand laundries, including Chinese wash houses. The steam laundries will continue to pay the old license of $15 per quarter. The license for the manufacture of malt liquors was reduced from $50 to $25 per quarter, to comply with the new law, and the license for beer was advanced from $7.50 to $10 per quarter. The street railway license of $25 per quarter was raised to $50.

Just before the meeting adjourned several members of the committee attempted to drink some of the liquid contained in the water tank, but the stuff had such a strong smell and vile taste that they were unable to drink it. They registered a joint protest, and it was decided by a unanimous vote, to recommend that the water company's license of $50 a quarter be raised to $75. The committee's report will be presented to the council at its meeting to-night in the form of an amendment to the license ordinance.

The fire committee met last evening and recommended that the wagon for use in fire emergencies be purchased from F. M. Grady for $225 and that the harness be bought from A. H. Barrett for $75. The street and alley committee met yesterday afternoon and decided to recommend that the bid of J. H. Barrett for a set of harness for $15, and that the bid of F. H. Grady for $75 for a wagon for the use of the street commissioner be accepted. They recommended that M. O'Donnell be allowed no damages for the injury alleged to have been done to the foundation of his house by the grading of Crystal street, as it had not been built on the established grade.

A finance committee also met yesterday afternoon and examined the police court docket and the city treasurer's report for May, which they found correct, and so reported.

Bicycle Hallucination.

From the Cleveland Plain Dealer.
Bicycle hallucinations are becoming a recognized nervous disorder," said a Cleveland doctor. "I know of a half dozen cases or more. One woman came to me claiming she couldn't ride on a street when a street car line was in operation. Every time a car came along she had a wild impulse to topple over towards it. She simply couldn't help it. Another woman said that whenever she rides her wheel she has an idea that somebody is scorching behind her. She feels the scorching's presence and expects every moment to be hurled to the ground. She rides in company with friends, but doesn't notice the unpleasant sensation, but it comes to her again as soon as she is alone. A man came into my office a few weeks ago and said there was something wrong with his wheel. I looked at them and they appeared to be all right. "He told me that whenever he rode his wheel and he was very fond of riding—the doctor began to slip away from the front of his mind. The landscape seemed to curl up—and it kept on curling as long as he rode. He fancied I knew what ailed him. He watched his front wheel too closely. I told him to sit up straighter, and to keep his eyes off the wheel. I guess it cured his malady, for he hasn't come back. I have another patient, a young girl. When she rides she trembles violently, and this imparts a trembling motion to the wheel. I don't appear to exhaust her, but she is very much worried because she can't stop it. I think she will outgrow the tendency as she gets older and stronger. Of course, the men and women who are in the habit of riding right at the first obstacle they meet are still very common. That, however, is easily cured by a steady application to the wheel. A few additional lessons will soon drive this form of hysterical impulse away."

A WONDERFUL FIND.

Melvor-Tyndall Demonstrated the Value of His Psychic Power.

The distinguished English clairvoyant, Alexander J. Melvor-Tyndall, who is staying at the Butte hotel for a few days, is arousing a great deal of interest in his wonderful powers of clairvoyance and telepathy.

All day yesterday a constant stream of people, among whom were many of Butte's representative citizens, kept seeking the eminent mystic's advice.

Among the many remarkable demonstrations of his clairvoyant powers is that of a well-known lady of this city, who called on the mystic the last time he was here and informed him that she had lost a valuable diamond ring, which she had reason to believe had been stolen. Melvor-Tyndall at once received the impression of the whereabouts of the ring and of her that if she would have the pipe leading from her bathroom opened at a specified place she would find that the ring had been carried through the opening and lodged in a certain spot, which proved to be true.

Melvor-Tyndall is in Butte for three days only, and every one who has the opportunity should seek his advice and clairvoyant impressions at his parlor, 218, in the Butte Hotel, between 10 a. m. and 5 p. m.

Canada's Rebel Colony.

From the Washington Post.
The last of the Canadian confederate colony has just died out in my state," said Major D. W. Sanders of Louisville, Ky. "Judge W. Cleary died at Covington the 16th of this month, the last survivor of the colony of confederates who went over to Canada and carried on operations there, greatly to the annoyance of the federal government, and from their headquarters at Montreal carried on an active agitation in behalf of the Southern cause. The other members of the committee were Jacob Thompson, C. C. Clay and Professor Holcomb. Now they are all dead. President Andrew Johnson offered a reward of $10,000 for the head of Judge Cleary, but no one claimed the prize money. Judge Cleary was an honorable and distinguished citizen of Kentucky, and held many posts of honor and trust. After the war was over he sold his disabilities removed, and no man devoted himself more assiduously than he to the task of rebuilding the union and restoring amity between the sections."
